Central Christian Church In New Edifice

VIEW OF ETOWAH, NEW HOME OF CENTRAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH CONGREGATION.

Opening Services To Be Held Sunday.

By ELAINE BALLINGER

First services of Central Christian church in the congregation's new church home on Mt. Vernon avenue will be held Sunday. In response to a need for increased space and facilities to carry on more effectively activities of the congregation, recognized some time ago, officials of the church, with church approval, contracted for the purchase of the Etowah estate, for years a landmark in the city known as the King home. The Mt. Vernon avenue mansion was built in the early 1900's by George W. King, and in recent years has been the home of the Ray R. King and the W. Hoover Brown families.

Central Christian church purchased the estate the latter part of May this year. The transfer from the church building on West Church street, for 41 years the church home of the congregation, was made this week. This building has been sold to First Church of the Nazarene congregation, who will move there from the church building on South State street, the first of the year, following completion of redecoration and remodeling work.

Plans of Central Christian church for the present are to use the west half of the Mt. Vernon avenue mansion, recently vacated by the King family, for services. Since rooms used temporarily for a sanctuary will be comparatively small, it will be necessary to hold two worship services on Sundays, Rev. Eldred Johnston, pastor, stated. The schedule will be as follows: 9:30 a. m., graded worship service, which will be three simultaneous services of worship in different parts of the building for adults, junior department children, and elementary department children; 10:45, class period, with Sunday school classes for various age groups; and 11:15, unified worship. This service will be primarily for adults, but children may attend, it was explained, together with the hope expressed that families with children will try to attend the 9:30 service.

Plan Open House

An open house event to enable the public to see the new church home has been arranged for Sunday afternoon, Nov. 23. When the Brown family vacates the east half of the mansion, the church will take over the entire building.

No definite plans have been made as yet for future use of the house and grounds, but two plans have been prominent in the discussion of the trustees, namely the erection of a sanctuary for worship at the rear of the present building; and use of the gardens by anyone who wishes to enter, rest and pray. Concerning the latter, it has been stated, "The church does feel a sense of stewardship toward the whole community in its new location, and hopes that the grounds and building will soon be available for many community Christian activities." Present staff of the church includes Rev. Johnston; George Lane, director of music; Mrs. Madge Curl, organist; and Mrs. Avis Clark, sexton.

Years of Planning

The movement of expansion of Central Christian church has a background of several years of calculation and planning for greater room and more facilities

4 UNIONS TO IGNORE LABOR LAW DEADLINE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—Four of the nation's most powerful labor unions give every sign of ignoring today's deadline for gaining legal status before the reorganized national labor relations board.

The Taft-Hartley act requires unions to submit financial reports as well as affidavits from officers disavowing communism. And this under NLRB rules is the last day for compliance.

While many others rushed to get under the wire in time to save pending cases from dismissal, these four unions appeared to be cinch holdouts:

John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, Philip Murray's United Steelworkers, the United Auto Workers and the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

All but Lewis' AFL miners are CIO affiliates.

Lewis claims some 600,000 members, including 250,000 in the controversial UMW District 50.

By allowing today's deadline to slip by, Lewis intentionally will force the NLRB to carry out its threat to dismiss pending cases of non-complying unions. A. D. (Denny) Lewis, brother of the UMW chief and head District 50, says there were about 200 District 50 cases on the board's docket when the Taft-Hartley act became effective Aug. 22.

CREDIT RESTRICTIONS TO END TOMORROW

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—Easier ers are expected as controls over terms for many installment buy-consumer credit follow price ceilings off the statute books at midnight tomorrow.

The amount of down payments and the number of months to pay will be strictly up to the seller for the first time in over six years.

The expiring controls require in general one-third down and full payment within 15 months for automobiles, radios, refrigerators, washing machines and other major household appliances.

What sellers and lenders do with their new freedom will be watched closely by officials here who, from the President on down, have expressed fear of fuel being added to the flames of inflation.

There is wide speculation that President Truman may ask congress to revive credit controls when it meets Nov. 17 on his call to combat high prices and consider aid to Europe.

Last Sugar Controls To End at Midnight

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 — Sugar brokers here see no reason why the expiration of price controls at midnight should cause much change in what a five-pound package will cost the housewife tomorrow.

They differ, however, as to price trends next year.

Some believe a world surplus of sugar is in store in 1948. They cite the expectations of a huge crop in Cuba, the rapid restoration of the war-damaged Philippine sugar industry, and the recovery of central European beet sugar areas. Others think demand will advance.

Sugar brokers say the industry has been fearing a drop in prices when control ends at midnight tonight, but that this was prevented by housewives, who started hoarding, thereby keeping supply closer to demand.

4 AMENDMENTS TO BE VOTED UPON TUESDAY

Ohioans To Pass on Bonus, Tax Curbs, Judges' Terms and Commission.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31—Ohio voters decide Tuesday whether to make four changes in the state's constitution.

The changes in the form of amendments to be voted on, would:

1. Authorize payment of $300,000,000 in bonuses to World War II veterans:

2. Limit used of gasoline taxes and auto license revenue to highway and street improvements:

3. Add the governor and state treasurer to the three-member commission administering the bonus, and

4. Extend from four years to six the term of probate judges.

The last constitutional changes voted in 1944 permitted use of temporary or substitute judges in the Ohio supreme court and revised jurisdiction of appellate courts.

Requires Revision

The bonus proposal requires revision of the constitution because the state now is limited to maximum indebtedness of $750,000. A similar amendment was approved to permit payment of $30,000,000 in bonuses to World War I veterans.

The proposal will permit the state to issue and sell $300,000,000 in bonds to pay bonuses to all World War II veterans of Ohio at the rate of $10 for each month of domestic service and $15 for foreign duty between Dec. 7, 1941, and Sept. 2, 1945, to a maximum of $400.

Fifteen-year bonus bonds would be redeemed by taking $12,000,000 annually from the general revenues of the state and imposing an additional real estate tax to make up the difference.

The legislature also has set aside $25,000,000 in state revenues to help pay the bonuses.

State Treasurer Don H. Ebright has estimated the extra realty levy at about $3.64 a year for each $5,000 of assessed property valuation.

4 Months Needed

Gov. Thomas J. Herbert said "at least four months" would be required after approval of the bonus amendment before payments could be started.

The bonus proposal is a companion measure to the plan to add two members to the state sinking fund commission, which would administer the bonus. The commission now is composed of the attorney general, state auditor and secretary of state.

Those two proposals and the one increasing terms of all probate judges throughout the state were ordered on the ballot by the state legislature.

The proposed restriction on use of gas and auto tax funds will be submitted as the result of initiative petitions filed with the secretary of state by the Ohio Committee for Better Roads.

It would require earmarking for highway purposes of about $15,000,000 a year from the cent-a-gallon liquid fuel tax which now goes into the general revenue fund.

3 of 4 Cents Used

Currently three of four cents collected in taxes on each gallon of motor vehicle fuel in Ohio goes for road and street improvements. Proponents of the proposed amendments contend all four cents should go for highway purposes.

Governor Herbert and a number of organizations have objected to the suggested change because it would put the legislature in a strait jacket and might result in new taxes in event of an emergency.

The legislature for the 1947-48 biennium appropriated from general funds a total of $9,960,000 to the state highway department and $7,760,000 to villages, townships, cities and counties for road purposes.

Voters in 1934 turned down two related issues. One proposed to limit gasoline taxes to three cents a gallon and require their use for highway purposes and the other to restrict motor vehicle license fees to the same purpose.

Herbert Refers Scioto Request to Sherwood

By The United Press

COLUMBUS, Oct. 31 — Gov. Thomas J. Herbert today said he would refer to the state welfare director a letter from the probate judge of Preble county requesting the administration to take action to acquire part of the Scioto ordnance plant near Marion for use as a medium correctional institution for boys.

Judge Lloyd B. Bennett told Herbert the administration should take action to make the Marion site a branch of the Boys' Industrial school with medium security provisions.

Herbert said Welfare Director Charles Sherwood undoubtedly would have something to say on the proposal.

2ND BOSTON HOLDUP NETS $29,000 LOOT

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Oct. 31—Four gunmen escaped with a $29,000 payroll today after holding up the paymaster of the Revere Sugar Refinery in South Boston.

Police reported the men fled in a new black sedan.

The quartet, using cloth sacks as masks, were armed with sawed-off shotgun and pistols and were clad in rough work clothes and welders' helmets. Investigation showed the registration plate on the robbers' car had been stolen from an automobile in the Back Bay.

The hold-up came close on the heels of a $108,000 payroll robbery yesterday at the Sturtevant division of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation in Hyde Park and the two crimes bore considerable similarity.

Slayer, 16, Must Die In Chair, Court Rules

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 31—Sixteen-year-old Donald Frohner, convicted slayer of William C. Spieth, 52-year-old Ashtabula salesman, here last January, must die in the electric chair.

The Seventh district court of appeals so ruled today in upholding the decision of the common pleas three-judge court. No date has been set for the execution.

Three common pleas judges previously had decreed that Frohner must die in the chair and that his companion, Arthur Chapman, 16, in the hitch-hike ride which resulted in Spieth's death, must spend his life in the penitentiary.

No statement was available immediately from defense counsel, but it was indicated an appeal will be made to the state supreme court.

MOVIE INQUIRY ENTERS RECESS

Atomic Spy Link with Hollywood To Come in Next Phase "In Due Time."

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—The promised disclosures of a definite link between movieland and Russian atom bomb spying must await the next phase of the Reds-in-Hollywood investigation.

This will come in "due time," Chairman Thomas (R-NJ) pledged today as his house committee on Un-American activities ended two weeks of public hearings.

Paul V. McNutt, special counsel for the Motion Picture association declared in a statement the investigators had produced no proof of charges that films contain surversive propaganda.

The committee's evidence about Soviet snooping on the atom bomb secret was developed by the final witness, Louis J. Russell, 35-year-old Kentuckian who worked with the FBI for 10 years before becoming a committee investigator two years ago.

Traces Action

He traced the actions of people he said wanted to get information about the bomb.

His testimony boiled down to assertions that:

1. George Charles Eltenton, a former employe of the Shell Development Corporation, Emeryville, Calif., and a former resident of Russia, was approached in 1942 by Peter Ivanov, vice consul and secretary at the Soviet consulate in San Francisco.

2. Ivanov offered a cash payment to Eltenton if he could get information about "highly secret work" at the University of California radiation laboratory at Berkeley.

3. Eltenton contacted Haakon Chevalier, a professor at the university, and asked him to find out what was being done concerning a "highly destructive weapon."

4. Chevalier approached Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, the atom bomb expert, and told him Eltenton "could relay information to the Soviet government."

5. Oppenheimer told Chevalier that was a "treasonable act and he wouldn't have anything to do with it."

"CAN'T IMAGINE WAS DONE BY AMERICANS"

Strong Words Shot at Kenton Raid Gang by Congressman in Galion Inquiry.

Special to The Star.

GALION, Oct. 31—Rep. Walter Brehm of Logan, O. suggested today that people "from Russia" were responsible for the raid by a masked band of 20 men on the Kenton plant of the North Electric Company Oct. 22.

Brehm made his remark after Ira Mabrey, night guard at the Kenton plant, 30 miles west of here, told a congressional committee investigating a 10-week strike at the North Electric plant here that the marauders wore red cloth masks.

"They probably came from Russia," Brehm said; "I can't imagine Americans doing that."

The CIO United Auto Workers, which is conducting a strike here, has disclaimed knowledge of the Kenton raid, which preceded a 12-hour siege by UAW sympathizers of the Galion plant.

R. K. McBerty, vice president of the company, testified yesterday that the Kenton raid stopped work on a 4,000-line switchboard for the atomic energy commission.

While the hearing by a two-man subcommittee on the house education and labor committee went into its second day, negotiations resumed between UAW and company officials attempting to settle the Galion strike which started Aug. 20.

Says Negotiations Hindered

Union officials contended yesterday that the congressional hearing conducted by Rep. Clare Hoffman (R-Michigan) was making more difficult a settlement of the union demands for a contract.

However, Col. Thomas Brock of the Ohio adjutant general's office reported that the two sides were still together after more than an hour of talks this morning.

George Wilt, a striking shipping department employe at the Galion plant, testified that Edward J. Duck, a UAW International representative, rented a room at his home here and signed a union check for Wilt's September telephone bill of $53.87.

Hoffman read into the record the bill itself, showing calls to Toledo, Detroit, Marion, Mansfield, Bucyrus, Cardington, Cleveland and Buffalo, N. Y.

Wilt said neither he nor his wife made any of the calls.

Reopening Plans Rumored

The twin sessions got underway amid rumors that the telephone switchboard equipment factory might be reopened in the face of possible disorders such as those of Oct. 22, when union sympathizers kept 350 non-strikers inside the plant grounds for 12 hours.

Rep. Clare Hoffman (R-Mich), one of three congressmen sitting in at the hearings, indicated an attempt might be made to reopen the factory when he asked law enforcement officers during last night's session if they could protect the plant.

Hoffman asked the same question of Sheriff Ralph E. Schreck, Police Chief James L. Walker and Lt. Col. Graham, Gov. Thomas J. Herbert's observer.

All assured him the plant would be protected. The governor paid a personal visit to the strike scene earlier this week and declared he would "tolerate no further outbreaks of violence."

"If violence of mob rule develops which the sheriff can not cope with, I can assure you that it will not be long before help is here," Graham told Hoffman.

The CIO United Auto Workers union is demanding collective bargaining recognition and a 20 per cent pay hike.

Main Issue Now

Major issue at present, say federal mediation officials, is a plant-wide election. The company demands one, the union wants a card check of union members as of Aug. 20—date the strike started—against the company pay roll. Negotiations were adjourned Wednesday for the hearing.

Yesterday the opening day of congressional hearing, also attended by Reps. Walter Brehm of Logan and Frederick C. Smith of Marion, an ex-officio member, was marked by long, bitter and angry debate.

Edward Duck, UAW organizer, told the committee several times that its presence made settlement of the strike more difficult. Hoffman once shouted in return:

"All you have to do to cool off animosities is to get out of town, call off your goon squads and let the people go back to work."

Morning's Testimony

In all the congressional committee heard nine witnesses at the session this morning.

In addition to Mabrey, the Kenton plant guard who was held at gun point while the plant was raided, Jeffrey C. Watkins, Ken-

Byrnes Quotes Marx In Tracing Developments In Russian Expansionism

By JAMES F. BYRNES

I HAVE said enough, I think, to indicate one cardinal fact that must be kept in mind in evaluating any Soviet action. The fact is that, to them, the ends justify any means. The question we must therefore ask is, what are the ends sought by Soviet leaders. In other words, what are the Russians after?

My experiences merely confirm an answer that actually is found in Russian history. Few Americans are well informed on Russian history. I do not profess to be. But I have learned enough to conclude that many of the problems which perplex us today have their explanation in that history. Despite the violence of the Russian revolution, the aims of the Bolshevik diplomacy differ very little from those of the Czars. And the aims that Stalin and Molotov have pursued since the end of the war vary little from the demands they made of Adolf Hitler.

Russian expansionism, which has concerned us so deeply in the post-war years, was clearly exposed, and strangely enough, by the godfather of the Communist revolution, Karl Marx. In a series of articles written for the New York Tribune from London in 1853, Marx dealt at length with "The Eastern Question." Among his observations were these:

> As to Russia's antipathy against aggrandizement, I allege the following facts from a mass of the acquisitions of Russia since Peter the Great.
> The Russian frontier has advanced: towards Berlin, Dresden and Vienna, about 700 miles; towards Constantinople, about 500 miles; towards Stockholm, about 630 miles; toward Teheran, about 1,000 miles . . . The total acquisitions of Russia during the last 60 years are equal in extent and importance to the whole empire she had in Europe before that time.

In another dispatch, Marx wrote:

> And as sure as conquest follows conquest, and annexation follows annexation, so sure would the conquest of Turkey by Russia be only the prelude for the annexation of Hungary, Prussia, Galicia, and for the ultimate realization of the Slavonic empire which certain fanatical Panslavic philosophers have dreamed of . . . The arrest of the Russian scheme of annexation is a matter of the highest moment.

How contemporary that sounds!

Following 1853, the year of these dispatches, Russia continued to acquire territory right up to World War I. The total territorial gain of czarist Russia between 1853 and 1914 was 971,277 square miles, which brought the prewar area of the Russian empire up to 8,645,000 square miles.

The advent of Soviet power in Russia was accompanied by the loss of nearly half a million square miles of territory. The new Soviet Union excluded the areas of Finland, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, which became independent states. Kars was ceded to Turkey; Bessarabia was returned to Romania, and a large area was lost to the new Poland.

Got Slow Start

During the first 20 years of Soviet rule, the only extension of territory was the annexation in 1926 of certain islands in the Arctic. But in 1939 the Soviet Union embarked upon an active policy of expansion. Between Dec. 4, 1939, and the end of 1945, the Soviet Union took control of the territories of Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Bessarabia, south Sakhalin and the Kuriles, parts of Finland and of Poland, the Konigsberg area in East Prussia, the Transcarpathian Ukraine, and Tannu Tuva. It also took over Port Arthur, where, although it did not acquire sovereignty, it did acquire the right for 30 years to maintain a naval base jointly with China. In all, nearly 300,000 square miles of territory have been acquired since 1939, bringing the area of the Soviet Union to 8,455,939 square miles, only slightly less than the greatest extent of czarist Russia.

It is clear, then, that expansionism is not an innovation of the Communist regime. It is rooted in Russian history. Only the personalities and the tactics have changed.

Russia's modern leaders nevertheless have given us an outstanding demonstration of the means they are quite willing to employ to achieve their ends. This is found in the story of Russo-German relations from the Munich agreement in September 1938, through the Russo-German Non-aggression Pact of August 1939, to Hitler's attack on the Soviet Union in June 1941.

Defends Non-Aggression Pact

In an after-dinner conversation at Yalta, Stalin said that the Soviet government would never have entered into the Non-aggression Pact with Germany had it not been for the attempt at Munich to appease Hitler and the failure of Britain and France to consult the Soviet Union on the subject.

Certainly it is true that immediately after Munich, the Soviet press began to modify its campaign of criticism against Germany. By December 1938, when a trade agreement between the two countries was renewed, the press felt free to hail the action as a forward step in Soviet-German relations. Shortly thereafter, in an address to a congress of the Communist party, Stalin stated that the only differences between Germany and Soviet Russia were ideological, and these differences were exaggerated by others who wanted someone else to "pull their chestnuts out of the fire" for them.

In the spring of 1939, Stalin made known his disappointment over the results of Soviet negotiations with France and England. Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinov, known for his understanding of "the West" was removed and replaced by V. M. Molotov.

Hitler seemed indifferent to these overtures. It was not until the summer that Hitler evidently decided he would need the support of Russia to make his projected attack on Poland. Events followed so quickly that they mystified the governments of the world and frightened those of us who still hoped war might be avoided.

Records Found

The history of those negotiations remained obscure until records of them were discovered among the captured archives of the Nazi government. They make an important contribution to our understanding of what it is the Soviet Union seeks. That part of the story which includes the conversations of the principal actors was reported by Gustav Hilger, counselor of the German embassy in Moscow, who acted as interpreter for the negotiators. His report is from notes made at the time when he could have had no motive for making them inaccurate or false. The rest of the story is based upon official documents discovered in the files of the German foreign office.

The record, therefore, is German and has not been confirmed by Soviet sources. However, it cannot be disregarded by anyone seeking the truth about what occurred in that fateful year preceding Hitler's attack on the Soviet Union. Nor can it be disregarded by anyone seeking to understand what is in the minds of those in the Kremlin today. Do they merely desire security? To get what they regard as security, do they intend to expand their control over other states and peoples? Often it is possible to tell what is in a man's mind and heart by what he has said and done in the past in relation to the same issues.

Let us see what guidance this history holds for us. I think it reasonable to assume that Soviet ambitions still include the territory Molotov desired when he sent his message to Hitler. Some of those desires have been fulfilled. However, the flush of victory has encouraged the Soviet government to extend its ambitions.

Eyes Turn to Norway

In the north, their demands against Finland have been satisfied. During the war, Mr. Molotov explored the possibility of extending Soviet power a little through concessions from Norway. In November, 1944, he asked Norway to grant the Soviet Union greater economic privileges in the Spitzbergen group of islands. He wanted outright possession of Bear Island and the right to establish military facilities on other islands of the group.

Mr. Molotov made this request despite the fact that the 1920 treaty—by which Norwegian sovereignty over these islands was recognized and which was signed by 34 countries, including the Soviet Union—contained a proviso that Norway could not construct fortifications and that the islands could "never be used for warlike purposes." The Norwegian government, after first agreeing to discuss both subjects, has since declared it would consider only the economic issue and has pointed out that the military proposal must be a subject of multilateral negotiation.

In the east, the Soviet Union now has all of Sakhalin and, in addition, has taken over the Kuriles and has acquired rights in Port Arthur, Dairen, and on the Manchurian railroad. Whether Stalin will continue to resist the temptation offered by the successes of the Chinese Communist forces in Manchuria is a question which, at this writing, remains in the balance.

Congregation Organized Here In 1902 Shows Steady Growth

Forty-five years of progress of the Central Christian church will be rounded out Nov. 16, anniversary of organization of the congregation. It was on Monday, Nov. 16, 1902, that 37 persons met in the old Holiness mission rooms on North State street for the purpose of effecting organization of a church group of the Disciples of Christ or Christian denomination.

Growth of the church since that time has resulted in a present membership of many times the original number, with approximately 560 now belonging to the church. It was because of this great increase in numbers that the church has found it necessary to vacate the church building on West Church street, home of this religious group 41 years, to transfer to a place where more room is available. The congregation bought the Etowah estate on Mt. Vernon avenue in May and moved to the new quarters this week.

Formed in 1902

The history of Central Christian church is a record of continuous progress. At the organization meeting on that November night in 1902, Rev. J. T. H. Stewart of Findlay presided. Officers elected were W. C. Thornberry, elder; R. C. Dugan and Charles Kennedy, deacons; Mrs. Julia Hudson, treasurer; Mrs. L. J. Foster, clerk; and Mrs. Elnora Lutz, Thomas Kennedy, and Mr. Thornberry, solicitors for church budget. W. C. Stafford and L. J. Foster were appointed to select a place for holding services. A room was secured in the Masonic temple for a temporary worship center. The group was granted a charter.

Rev. B. F. Bolton of Findlay occupied the pulpit on Nov. 22, 1902, for first service of the new organization. Following the service a business session was held and trustees were elected including John D. Owens, D. V. Lehman, Thomas Kennedy, Mr. Stafford and H. J. Scholl. Rev. W. L. Stine of Genoa accepted an invitation to become pastor. Attendance at services had grown to 65, and in January, 1903, first service of worship was held in a new location, a hall over the Fies Furniture store on South Main street. Among new residents in Marion who had joined the congregation were Mr. and Mrs. Houpt from Mansfield. It was Mrs. Houpt who urged organization of a Women's Missionary society which was accomplished Dec. 2, 1903 with an enrollment of 16 active members and six associates. Officers were Mrs. Houpt, president; Mrs. Mary Allabaugh, vice president; Miss Luella M. Scholl, secretary; and Mrs. L. J. Foster, treasurer.

Accepts Pastorate

Nov. 20, 1903, Rev. Franklin Mahoney accepted the pastorate. During his period of service, present site of the church building on West Church street was purchased from the Mrs. Elizabeth McMahon estate. This was on Aug. 1, 1904. Jan. 1, 1905, Rev. O. D. Maple came as pastor, and during his ministry here the work of clearing the land and erection of a building was begun. Dedication of the church edifice was April 8, 1906, and six months later, the sanctuary was completed, Oct. 11, 1906. Rev. B. C. Piatt was pastor for a short time, then Sept. 8, 1908, Rev. C. W. Miller accepted invitation to the pastorate. At the death of holder of a mortgage on the church, heirs of the estate foreclosed. It was through the state board of the denomination at Cleveland that the local congregation was able to obtain a loan from the national board at St. Louis, Mo., to take care of the mortgage. The Euclid Avenue Church of Christ at Cleveland assisted the Marion congregation as a mission church.

April 20, 1911, Rev. Charles A. Pearce took over the work. A new charter was drafted. A call to Rev. M. L. Buckley to become pastor was accepted as of Sept. 15, 1918, and in 1921, last installment of the note due the national church board was paid. A special noteburning service was held.

Parsonage Purchased

During the pastorate of Rev. Allen T. Shaw, begun Dec. 20, 1923, a parsonage was purchased. A new pastor, Rev. George E. Groves, took over Feb. 21, 1926. He was succeeded April 12, 1931, by Rev. James O. Dodd. During this pastorate, an electric organ was presented the church by Mrs. Dugan in memory of her husband. This necessitated remodeling for a suitable place for the organ and choir loft. Mortgage on the parsonage was paid off during the pastorate of Dr. Harry L. Bell who began his work in Marion Jan. 10, 1937. The unified service of morning worship was inaugurated at that time. Dr. Bell was succeeded by the present pastor, Rev. Eldred Johnston, in October, 1942.

In the last few years the educational department of the church has been improved, retreat planning was inaugurated, a church paper, the C. C. C. Gazette, was established, and a three-year remodeling fund campaign was carried through.

In addition to its growth in membership, the church has produced a number of men who made the decision to make the ministry of the church their life work. These include Ronald Sechrist, Bruce Moore, Kenneth Obenour (deceased), Wayne Bell, Winston Bell, Cecil McKee, Melvin Keeran and Ray Bosh.

for carrying on various phases of the church's activities.

Shortly after Rev. Johnston came to Marion in the fall of 1942, the board of elders, under chairmanship of the late Millard Hunt, and at suggestion of Mr. Hunt and Lawrence Sager, started a fund to remodel the basement of the church.

As the elders studied this project, they concluded it would be impractical unless the entire building were remodeled. They then sent to Indianapolis, Ind., for A. F. Wickes, the denomination's architect, to come to Marion and study the possibility of remodeling. He made his study and submitted his recommendation, in January, 1943.

The elders then appointed a committee to raise $15,000 in the following three years. Under the leadership of Mr. Sager and Elmer Weimer, this was accomplished.

On July 21, 1946, the official board commissioned J. W. Everhard of Cleveland as architect, instructing him to plan the remodeling of the church. The plans called for renovating of the roof, remodeling of the basement and main floor, installation of a new heating system, and the construction of an attractive exterior.

Enthusiasm began to dwindle for two reasons. Building costs were increasing so rapidly that the original appraisal of the remodeling job had to be doubled, and the congregation increasingly realized that even after such a large expenditure of money they would not have much more room and facilities than was then possessed.

About April 21 a report came to the remodeling committee that the Etowah estate was for sale. The committee, sensing the dwindling interest in remodeling, began to discuss the advantages of moving, impossibility of extending the present building because of close proximity of residential buildings, and the strategic location of Etowah for a church—practically the only church location in the southeast quarter of the city, the nearness to the future high school site, and the fact that the city is expanding in a southeasterly direction, making this location close to the future center of population.

Negotiations Started

The committee then began negotiations with the owners of Etowah for the purchase of the property. About the same time, the Church of the Nazarene, hearing about this move, began negotiations for the purchase of the present church property. Consequently, on April 27, the remodeling committee brought to the official board the recommendation of selling the present property to the Nazarene church and purchase of the Etowah estate. The board unanimously approved the recommendation. A special meeting of the congregation was called on May 18 at which time the board chairman, Cutler McGrew, presented the recommendation of the board. The congregation unanimously voted for ratification, then vested absolute authority in the hands of the trustees. J. T. Bargar, chairman, for financing and developing the new location. The Women's Council, under the presidency of Mrs. Oscar Cross, raised money to help meet the cost of the new building, mainly through serving of cafeteria suppers.

OVEN GAS EXPLOSION CAUSES FIRE AT HOME

Gas in an oven exploded yesterday afternoon and set fire to the wallpaper, woodwork, and curtains in the kitchen of the home of James W. Richards, 125 West Fairground street, causing fire damage estimated at $30. Firemen from Central station answered the call at 5:42 p. m.

A discarded cigaret started a fire in a rubbish bin in the Marion Business college, 133 West Center street, at 8:23 p. m. yesterday and filled the area with smoke, but no damage resulted. Three trucks from Central station answered the call.

NOTHING STARTLING SEEN IN ELECTIONS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—Although the Taft-Hartley law and high prices have figured in some races, politicians look for few 1948 "trends" in next Tuesday's off-year state and municipal elections.

An apparently close contest for the Kentucky governorship, now held by a Republican as the result of a 1943 upset, holds prime interest from a national standpoint.

There also will be a six-way Democratic race for the senate seat of the late Theodore G. Bilbo in Mississippi, three special house elections to fill vacancies in Ohio, Indiana, and New York, veterans' bonus referenda in Ohio and New York, and scores of county and municipal elections.

A fourth congressional vacancy will be filled in Massachusetts Nov. 18.

The house seats at stake Tuesday were held by Republicans in Ohio's 4th and Indiana's 10th districts, and by a Democrat in New York's 14th. The Massachusetts 9th District seat was held by a Republican. No upsets in these districts are expected by leaders of either party.

Seven special house elections have been held so far this year without a single turnover.

3 OHIOANS ASPHYXIATED

By The Associated Press

HAMILTON, O., Oct. 31—An investigation opened today into the source of gas that asphyxiated three men and overcame four others while they relined a blast furnace "stove" at the American Rolling Mill Co.'s Hamilton division plant in nearby New Miami late yesterday. Dr. Edward Cook, Butler county coroner, identified the victims as Stanley Fry, 57, of Oak Hill; John (Buck) McRoberts, 43, of Hamilton, and Norbert P. Nolte, of Cincinnati.

made. Turkey was asked to cede the provinces of Kars and Ardahan south of Batum. The effort to extend south of Baku into Iranian territory was blocked by the security council.

The familiar technique of trying to install a puppet government under the protection of the Red army was employed. The Red army interfered with the armed forces of little Iran. The Soviets encouraged the establishment in Azerbaijan of an independent government. The case was brought before the security council. When the Soviets kept their troops in Iran beyond the date of their treaty, the council acted on the complaint of Iran. Every member of the council except the Soviet Union and Poland voted to protect the integrity of Iran. The Soviet Union complied with the security council's decision because it was not yet ready or willing to be isolated from the rest of the world.

The Bulgarian government, installed and protected by the Red army, has now made a pact unnecessary. Thus the "safety zone" between the Soviet Union and the Straits, which Molotov requested, has been achieved. In Romania, a similar regime has been installed by tactics I described earlier. The pursuit of Soviet ambitions in Hungary is a more recent story, but the pattern is old.

Just Two Remain Free

Poland has been subordinated to the status of a satellite. Albania and Yugoslavia are tightly clasped in the Soviet-dominated Slav bloc. Czechoslovakia is a captive of this bloc. Out of all the European areas toward which Molotov expressed an interest, only Greece and Turkey remain free. And the struggle for them is in progress.

The reports of our able observer, Mark Ethridge, have made it clear that a small, well-organized Communist minority, based in and supplied from Greece's Soviet-dominated neighbors, would have captured Greece long ago had it not been for two things: (1) the action by the United Nations, and (2) the Soviets' realization that, if they took over Greece, the United Kingdom would demand that the United Nations act against such aggression.

The security council's Balkan investigating committee delayed and exposed the effort. But chaos still prevails and the fate of Greece hangs in the balance while the American mission headed by former Governor Dwight Griswold seeks to promote the economic and political health which alone can kill off the disease of Communist-agitated unrest.

As for Turkey, we must remember that Stalin declared at Potsdam the continuing interest of the Soviet Union in the Straits and that subsequently a demand was made for the right to build a land and naval base in the area. Our efforts to obtain collective guarantees to maintain the freedom of the Dardanelles have been unsuccessful. We now have taken other measures to protect the sovereignty of Turkey.

Karl Marx and other historians made it plain that Soviet aspirations differ little from czarist aspirations. And certainly, Mr. Molotov's 1940 demands are a good general signpost for the immediate future.

Time is not necessarily on the Russian side in Europe or in Asia, according to Mr. Byrnes. He believes that the Soviets do not want to conquer Europe but rather to dictate the policies of non-Soviet European countries. And he believes that the United Nations can check this desire until some future time when the Russian people themselves can control their government's policies. His ideas on how the United States can help to bring this about are stated in the next installment of "Speaking Frankly," which will be published tomorrow.

SCHOOL FELLOWSHIP LUNCHEONS STARTED

140 Attend First of Series Set for Year.

Approximately 140 attended the first fellowship luncheon meeting of the school year for the High school group of the Marion Christian Youth movement Thursday noon at Epworth Methodist church. Present besides students from the public High schools of the city were members of the interdenominational youth group's advisory board, and E. E. Holt, superintendent of city schools, and J. E. Frew, principal of Thomas A. Edison Junior High school. The speaker was Rev. D. H. Hochstettler, pastor of First Evangelical United Brethren church, whose topic was "A Christian Good Time." Group singing was led by Tom Scott, accompanied by Ann Ferguson, invocation was by Rev. Emil C. Klutey of Salem Evangelical and Reformed church, and benediction by Dr. V. E. Busler, host pastor. Announcements concerning a state youth meeting and a Thanksgiving banquet were made by Richard Howard, president of the Ohio Christian Youth movement, and Miss Virginia Howard. James Rea presided.

A skit, entitled "Little Nell Quartet," in costume, was presented by Roxana Pauling, Marilyn Fields, Rae Fetter and Rose Readey. The basement dining room of the church was decorated in Halloween colors and ornaments. Women of the church served the luncheon. Plans are to hold the luncheons monthly in various downtown churches. The Thanksgiving banquet will take the place of the November meeting.

In his talk, Rev. Hochstettler expressed the opinion that the desire of people for pleasure and a "good time" is as religious as worship, since "God created this desire in his creation" the same as he created in them a need for worship and communion with the higher power. He stressed the point that in order to be true to God's purpose for creating this desire, however, any form of recreation should be measured by a standard to determine if it is constructive or destructive, whether it puts something back for the effort expended on it, to enrich the life or the experiences of those taking part.

Convention Talk

THE Democrats' choice of Philadelphia for their 1948 convention is another indication time is moving apace toward the day when delegates of both parties assemble to hear the old familiar phrases.

"A man who . The great sovereign state of . To know him is to respect his integrity and admire his statesmanship ...Stands foursquare . .Alabama casts 11 votes ...The clerk will poll the convention... The delegates will please be seated...."

One result of the Democrats' choosing the same convention city as the Republicans is that it may now be stated without fear of contradiction that the next president of there great and glorious United States will be chosen in the stately Quaker city in the great and historic commonwealth of Pennsylvania. (If the foregoing lines seem florid, remember that full-blown convention oratory will make it sound like an understatement.)

Instructions for Tonight

PARENTS whose children have permission to be out after dark have a responsibility to see that their charges go out well instructed tonight and tomorrow night as the Halloween season reaches its climax.

Children should be cautioned against wanton depredations and disturbing the peace. Halloween is traditionally dedicated to spooks, and no self-respecting haunt is guilty of such misconduct. If this line doesn't impress the children, bring more objective arguments into play. Point out that if they fall into the hands of the police or an angry householder it will go hard with them. Explain that intelligent people know how to have fun without causing distress or annoyance to others.

Even threat of corporal punishment might serve as a deterrent but parents who are doing a good job of rearing their children should have to resort only to a mild precautionary briefing.

Hughes? The Name's Familiar

THE senate war investigating committee resumes its sessions Monday in Washington. For those whose memories need refreshing, this is the committee which suspended hearings Aug. 11 after John Meyer, Howard Hughes, Elliott Roosevelt and others had testified at stormy sessions. The consensus was that the committee, having scored a pyrrhic victory at best, took time out to marshall its strength.

As a result of the current din over Communists, the proceedings of the senate, or Ferguson, committee have been pretty much forgotten. Ferguson investigations asked no one if he was a Communist but they offered in evidence a nice collection of night club tabs. There also were enough references to girls who looked trig in bathing suits to provide a better grade of pictures than the Thomas hearings, which have specialized in Hollywood writers wearing shell-rimmed glasses.

The Communists Are Perturbed

SUBSTANTIAL drops in wholesale prices in northern Italy have greatly perturbed the Communists there. The principal Communist paper has stopped mourning for "the common people" and now takes the line that manufacturers and merchants are being forced into bankruptcy because the government refuses to extend credit.

The twists and turns of the Communist line over the world are routed so as to carry it where disaffection is greatest. Where the discontented are, there the Communists do their spadework.

The underlying Communist aim isn't to improve anyone's lot but to bring their party to power. If improvement of the status of any class helps communism's chances, that's fine, but it's secondary.

Sold, Uncle Sam!

THE government is listening to the chant of the tobacco auctioneer. With sales to Great Britain cut off, government purchases have begun under the price parity law, which means that tobacco will join powdered and frozen eggs in government storage.

Up to a point, tobacco is a staple leaf, but if allowed to stay in warehouses too long it becomes tasteless and powdery. That will mean only one thing—burning of excess tobacco, and not in cigarets either. If that should come to pass, the haze over the tobacco warehouses of Virginia, Kentucky and the Carolinas will consist of smoke that four out of five physicians agree is less irritating to the throat.

What's Required of an Economic System.

ANY economic system can be accepted only as long as it serves to produce and distribute goods to the advantage of those who live within its scope. When the system fails, the human mind naturally resorts to remedies. The New Deal was offered as a remedy in this country after the collapse of 1929. The British have accepted socialism not because they like it but because they have lost the tools for private capitalism. Such movements as Communism, Fascism and Nazism are results rather than causes; they are end products of the failure of private enterprise to perform its major function, which is to supply and distribute goods and services.

The principle on which such a government enterprise as TVA is based is that when private enterprise fails to provide the service needed by a community, the government, even in a capitalistic country, must step in because it is unsound to leave the community without the needed service. This principle is new in its broader applications but has actually always been followed in the social services, in the operations of the postoffice, the national parks, etc.

Depends on Circumstances

Americans generally oppose this concept of the government function because they fear the expansion of government in the economic area; yet they accept it when private enterprise collapses utterly either because the service is too large in scape or because of lack of enterprise, lack of leaderership, lack of imagination, unwillingness to take risks or even cupidity or stupidity makes private enterprise unavailable for the particular task.

I speak of this because I have been quarreling with an electric light company up in Sandisfield, Mass., where I have a farm. This quarrel has been continuous for about a dozen years. So far as I am concerned, I got out from under by buying a home electric power plant and making my own electricity, which I find altogether satisfactory. My farmer neighbors, however, are poor folks living on the milk they sell and the wood they cut which, in New England, is marginal. They cannot afford home plants and such devices. In fact, on an eight-mile stretch of road, four farms are growing into brush because of bad roads and lack of electricity. It is typical of this area.

Some Signed, Some Didn't

Last year the electric light company sent its man up our way to sign the folks up for electricity. Most signed. I signed for about 25 per cent of the total amount required for the entire service. Two of my neighbors did not sign up because of personal difficulties. It was because of this that I increased my guarantee although I can get along without the electric light company, using the aforesaid home plant. The company finds that the signatures provide $145 a year less than their desire and therefore they are continuing to delay the installation. They lack the initiative, the imagination and the ability to absorb the $145, although they operate in a large area at a profit.

Of course, this company has a monopoly granted by the state. It is a non-competitive business operating under the supervision of a state board. Between the bureaucracy of the state board and the lack of enterprise of the company, no interest is conserved but the stockholders', which is not wholesome, because it is a fundamental of the capitalist system that risks must be taken if profits are to be permitted.

Example of Fascism

When any branch of government guarantees profits, the economic system is not private enterprise; it is definitely fascistic. Under Fascism, the state controls the process and guarantees a return. In this country, the stockholder takes the risks and with it a profit or a loss. Capitalism is a profit or loss process; it cannot be altogether one way. Every storekeeper risks losses on certain articles to make profit on others.

What is true of the electric company up my way is true of similar companies that want profits without risks. It is most often true of monopolies. And it is most often true of companies that operate in areas where the public is least able to defend itself. Such organizations do more mischief to the private enterprise system than all the subversive agitators. They provide a justifiable argument against it.

He's Already Got John L.'s Repudiation

Senator Taft has officially announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination.

That is a surprise like keys on a piano.

Technically, Taft's hat is the first to be thrown in the ring this time. Stassen's was just left over from '44.

Tom Dewey is as yet unannounced but his candidacy is regarded as a certainty, he being the thorough type who is willing to try anything twice.

The Republicans have a habit of never nominating a defeated candidate, but Dewey is expected to volunteer to be the exception which proves the rule.

However, Senator Taft seems the most likely prospect at present, possessing not only all the necessary qualifications, but also the added attraction of having labor against him.

Special Session Prospects

By Mark Sullivan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—After President Truman's call for a special session of Congress, some political leaders gave out reactions. Many, more or less offhand, were more related to timeliness than to a considered program. Some had to do with political aspects—did Mr. Truman's call have any relation to next year's presidential campaign, what would be the political effect, how would the parties line up in the special session? That lasted only three days. By the beginning of this week, definite prospects began to emerge.

One has to do with priority, as between the two purposes named by Mr. Truman in his call, aid for Europe and high prices at home. Senator Taft, head of the Republican policy committee, implied that foreign aid should come first. He said congress could act on the immediate aid to Europe for the winter by Dec. 19, which would be a month after the special session begins.

Senator Taft carries much weight with the Republicans in congress and with congress as a whole. One reason for his influence is that he refrains from purporting to speak with any authority. His leadership is the sort that gets assent by the force of his ideas and arrives at formal policy after consultation. He has called a meeting of the senate Republican policy committee for Nov. 14, three days before the special session begins. Thereafter the formal Republican policy will be known —both as to giving foreign aid priority over domestic high prices, and as to just how much is to be done about foreign aid at this special session, and how much is to wait for the regular session in January and later.

McGrath Voices a Wish

On the part of the Democrats there will be, as respects foreign aid, a disposition to cooperate with the Republicans. Democratic Senator McGrath of Rhode Island, who has leadership through being chairman of the Democratic national committee, said this week that "I would like to think of this session as completely outside the field of partisan politics." On the part of leaders of both parties there is a strong disposition to extend to the matter of aid for Europe the bi-partisanship which has been practiced for more than four years about foreign affairs generally.

As the program for the special session presents itself to the members of congress and to the people, here are two subjects of legislation, foreign aid and domestic high prices, both emergency in nature. Many in congress and much of the public will think that the matter of high prices is the prior emergency, is very serious and close to every individual. But foreign aid is an emergency vital to the world conflict between us on one side and Russia and Communism on the other. In this conflict, France and Italy have in recent elections turned strikingly away from Communism. In this course they would be greatly encouraged by aid from us. Correspondingly discouraged by lack of it or uncertainty about it. In Washington officials responsible for our foreign policy are almost passionate in their anxiety about aid to Europe.

Possible Emergency Aid

A program that might emerge in the special session would begin by giving the immediate aid to Europe for the winter very promptly. As to the further and larger aid called for by the Marshall plan, there is practically no possibility of this being done as a whole during the special session. Conceivably a beginning might be made, accompanied by a declaration of policy, which would give assurance to the European nations. But the Marshall plan as a whole covers vastly more than the amounts of funds involved, including questions of policy and methods. The plan is a continuing thing, it must meet changing conditions as they arise, phases of it will be debated and acted on by congress for years.

That congress should act on high prices and threat of inflation very soon is imperative. Postponement of it or undue subordination of it would lead to a disturbance of confidence which of itself, if it should develop, would be dangerous. It is hardly supposable that any leaders in either party should think that this subject can be deferred during the political campaign which is only seven months ahead. To suppose this would be toying at once with personal delusion and national danger.

Steel's Dilemma — Problem of Expansion

Producers Doubt That Huge Building Program Is Justified.

THE continued postwar steel shortage has given rise to sharp controversy over the ability and willingness of the American steel industry to meet the requirements of an economy geared to full employment and full production.

The steel industry attributes the shortage to an abnormal and temporary demand resulting from wartime dislocations. It hesitates to expand on anything like the scale called for by its critics because of the risk that steel demand will collapse in a postwar recession two or three years hence.

On the other hand, government economists, labor leaders and spokesmen for industrial users of steel assert that the shortage is indicative of a long-term increase in basic requirements. They insist steel capacity must be increased by at least 10,000,000 tons if the normal demand of the next decade is to be filled.

Present capacity is 91,200,000 tons of ingots a year. Actual production this year will approximate 85,000,000 tons, 20,000,000 more than any previous peacetime year. But current demand is estimated between 90 and 100 million tons and that will be sharply increased if Congress provides the dollars to supply the needs of steel-hungry Europe under the Marshall plan.

Expansion Program Started

The industry now has a 2,500,000-ton expansion program under way. Its spokesmen say this will be adequate to meet "every expectable demand in the near future." The other side says between 10 and 20 million tons of additional capacity will be needed to meet the full-employment requirements of the 1950's.

A wrong decision either way could have dire consequences Over-expansion would be costly and might prove injurious to the whole economy. Steel, like most heavy industry, has a huge capital investment relative to sales. High utilization of capacity is essential to profits. Before the war it was estimated the furnaces had to operate at 65 per cent of capacity to break even; increased rigidity of costs may have raised this figure to 75 per cent.

Under the best conditions, expansion is a gamble because of overhead costs which must be met by increased sales. There is an added gamble today because of inflated materials and labor costs. New capacity construction costs before the war were figured at $50 a ton; estimates today run as high as $200. Even those companies which desire to expand would rather postpone major construction until costs decline.

Steel men also argue the public would suffer if the industry expanded unwisely. There probably would be further advances in steel prices—some estimates run as high as $20 a ton—and, if a depression came, prices would have to remain high to compensate for curtailed demand.

Affects All Industry

The steel shortage is being felt in every branch of industry. Inadequate supplies are slowing deliveries of freight cars and pipe lines. This cuts production of coal, oil and other vital commodities. Farm machinery shortages are hampering food production. Makers of automobiles, stoves, refrigerators and other consumer goods are being forced to curtail operations.

The Commerce Department recently tightened export controls over steel to insure that the available supply goes to the neediest nations; and on Oct. 18, Interior Secretary Krug told the President that some form of domestic allocation may be necessary to meet European requirements if the Marshall plan is approved.

One of the strongest arguments against large-scale expansion is that additional facilities couldn't be completed in time to meet immediate needs, and that expansion now would aggravate the shortage by withdrawing large tonnages from the market for plant construction.

Large-scale expansion advocates base their claims on the assumption full production and full employment will continue for years if not impeded by a chronic shortage of basic steel. Steelmakers, however, say they must plan on the basis of experience, which shows alternate periods of high and low demand.

The record shows there has been a steady expansion in all except the deepest depression years. Against its own judgment the industry frequently has been urged to step up its expansion rate, but only during the pre-Pearl Harbor defense period did it seriously miscalculate future steel needs. In 1940-41, the government stepped in to provide incentives through special amortization allowances for tax purposes and direct loans for plant reconstruction. By these measures, production was stepped up 15,000,000 tons in five war years.

The shortage of scrap is another factor hampering steel production —and it is a shortage which is growing apace. In Cleveland recently, Robert W. Wolcott, chairman of the national scrap-expediting committee, said the steel industry would be dealt "a calamitous blow" before the winter months unless large supplies of scrap iron and steel are brought to the furnaces.

Coffin on a Caisson

(Lines written during services marking arrival back home of our first war-dead transports.)

This is the kid who went away
A few short autums back—
The lad that dropped his glove and bal
And put away his bat....
The boy who sat there with his dog
When supper time was through
Until the folks reminded him,
"You've got a lot to do"!

II.

This is the kid who ramped the fields
And fished the placid brook—
Who knew where all the big ones were
In deepest pool or nook;
The lad whose bike you like to hear
Come up the gravel path....
Who loved life's tranquil loveliness,
But died a death of wrath!

III.

This is your red-head paper-boy—
The one with such a grin—
The lad who seemed to know no care
As down the road he'd spin....
This is the one you used to hear
Cry "Skinny! Hey! So deep!"
As he plunged off a wobbly plank
Where once you used to leap.

IV.

This is the lad that some called "Ske
Or maybe "Slats" or "Slim,"
Who'd only just begun to live
When grim death beckoned him....
This is the lad who went away
One morn so sultry hot
To whom you vowed so solemnly
That you would fail him not!

V.

This is the kid who read about
The fight on tyrants low—
Who put full credence in the cry
That war and hate must go!
This is the boy who battled through
The ghastly fields and woods—
Whose spirit whispered "Listen, was
"I sold a bill of goods?"

VI.

This is the son. . He's now come back
I seem to see him rise
And look around at you and me
With sad, accusing eyes
Which flash with anger burning hot
As he surveys the scene
And note the awful double talk,
And all the hatreds mean.

VII.

Once more he sits beside a brook
Where oft before he played
And tries to fight away the thought
That he was so betrayed:
And in his heart he likes to feel
The chance is not too dim
That as he once came through for us
We'll yet come through for him!

"Nowhere has there been any construc suggestion as to what should replace pars once it had been abolished—nothing to rel the drab, grayish brown of gravy and potat What a prospect for humanity! The real trou with you lunch-counter cowboys is that never got enough parsley to get a good t of it."

(If our correspondent wants to come dow earth in a hurry, it will be a privilege to h lunch with him some day, where we eat would be worth a million dollars in old-fa ioned money to see what Louie would do if of the customers asked for a sprig of pars to relieve the "drab grayish brown of gr and potatoes.")

The subscriber comes to this conclusion:

"In your unconscionable campaign aga the finer things of life, you would banish an balm, basil, bene, borage, caraway, ca chives, coriander, cumin, dill, fennel, hoarhou lavender, mint, pennyroyal, rosemary, saffron, sage, savory, spearmint, sweet m joram, tansy, tarragon, thyme, wormwood, h sop, spike vervain and lovage."

This we deny. We would not banish anyth that was edible. Our only conviction on t whole matter is that parsley isn't edible and no proper place, therefore, on a dinner plate merely decorative effect. If someone can pr that the stuff is edible, like the marasch cherry they put in the bottom of glasses c taining that interesting concoction of ju known as a Manhattan, we will apologize to friends of parsley for anything we may h said that hurt their feelings.

But it still won't keep us from thinking t people who are so hard up for something to they'll eat parsley are as deserving of our sy pathetic attention as the backward Europea Africans, Asiatics and so no that we must te to eat in a style to which none of them e was accustomed.

Your Good Health

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Disorder Causing Fear of Recurring Pain.

Nothing is more demoralizing than the constant dread of pain and discomfort.

To know, even while suffering one bout of pain, that the same suffering must be encountered tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow is enough to take a great deal of the joy out of life. Today's discomfort may be of fairly short duration but the knowledge that it will return day after day does a great deal to make it seem intoleraable.

A disorder which causes this kind of dread is anal fissure, in which there is a crack or sore just at the lower opening of the bowel. This condition usually develops from a slight injury or inflammation of the tissues, which gradually brings about a loss of elasticity. Finally a split or tear occurs and inflammation becomes severe.

Healing usually takes place but only by the formation of a narrow band of scar tissue, which has no elasticity at all. Thus, later on, during straining or after any exertion a second crack or a number of cracks may develop. Further breaking of the tissues may occur crosswise so that an ulcer or sore forms. The cracks usually are much deeper than the ulcer and may bleed more extensively.

These fissures may be seen upon examination by the physician. The symptoms are about the same in all cases. The patient complains of pain and itching and occasional traces of blood. The pain is in the nature of burning and smarting following bowel movement. In many instances the pain may be most severe and agonizing.

Similar symptoms may be produced by hemorrhoids, or piles, as well as by an abcess in the area. However, by means of a careful examination, the physician is able to make the correct diagnosis.

Various forms of treatment have been employed for anal fissues. One method is to inject some pain-deadening substance beneath the fissure. Relaxation of the muscle in the area which follows the relief of pain may permit healing. However, in most instances, the condition will recur.

The greatest percentage of cures is brought about by means of operation, in which the fissure is cut away. However, following this operation, there may be a great deal of pain, and a prolonged period of recovery.

In many cases, simple stretching of the circular muscle at the lower opening of the bowel may produce a cure. This treatment relieves pain almost immediately and normal activity can be resumed on the fourth or fifth day after treatment. The stretching treatment will, however, not produce a cure in cases of larger fissures. Following the stretching, an antiseptic is applied which is mild and non-irritating.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. S.: Can hardening of the arteries of the heart be cured? Would this condition cause fainting spells?

Answer: There is no cure for hardening of the arteries. However, a person with such a condition should be under the care of a physician so that, by proper living, further damage to the heart may be prevented. Fainting attacks are not produced by this condition.

French Chief Expected To Shift Cabinet Again

Many deputies expressed belief that the government would have to bring in such figures as Leon Blum, former premier and elder statesman of the Socialist party, and Paul Reynaud, an independent rightist who was the last premier before the fall of France.

REV. SPICKERMAN SPEAKS AT MEETING OF Y'S MEN

Very Rev. William J. Spickerman, V.F., pastor of St. Mary Catholic church, was the guest speaker at the regular dinner meeting of the Y's Men's Service club at the Y.M.C.A. Wednesday night.

His subject was, "Bringing God Back Into Government." He pointed out that God entered into the very foundation of our great nation, His word being the all-guiding factor in the lives of the early fathers of our country. He stated that we have been for some time [illegible] God in our daily lives; we have been tolerating and only passively resisting the infiltration of totalitarianism into our very existence.

Following a round table discussion of Rev. Spickerman's talk, [illegible] Frericks gave a report on the disposition of funds recently set aside by the club for gifts for servicemen in the "Christmas on the High Seas" program of the Red Cross. A discussion concerning the activities of the United Veterans and Civic Council was followed by the voting of a cash donation to that Council's fund for prizes for the forthcoming Armistice Day Parade.

Guests included Rev. and Mrs. Hochstettler, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Smith, Mrs. Clyda Underwood, Mrs. Don Smith, Misses Mary Margaret Williams, Shirley Frost and Darlene Boyce, and Joel Bolander. The committee in charge of arrangements was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Almendinger, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Bolander and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Walters.

In 1908 an automobile tire cost about $35 and would run about 2,000 miles, while in 1936 a tire cost about $8 and would run about 20,000 miles.

ton plant manager, also testified. He read into the record a list of out-of-town automobiles observed in the neighborhood of the plant in the two weeks preceding the attack.

Mabrey told how 25 to 30 masked and gloved men raided the plant while one held him at gun point. He said they were in the plant about 15 minutes. He was [illegible] masks as red that Rep. Brehm made his remark about "men from Russia."

Hearing Room Crowded

The hearing opened this morning with the Galion council chamber packed by committee members, witnesses and spectators.

First witness was Miss Hortense Jenkins, an employe of the Mt. Gilead plant. She testified that she was prevented from entering the plant on three occasions by pickets who made insulting remarks. She said she was not molested after the Morrow county common pleas court granted an injunction limiting pickets. She made this answer in response to a question from Hoffman. Her quick words, "No, we have a real sheriff in Morrow county," brought laughter from the audience.

Another Morrow county witness was Mrs. Opal Wolcutt, who described attempts of the UAW to get her to sign a union pledge.

Ralph Ruth, Galion plant guard, told the committee one picket made the statement to him that "the injunction was not worth the paper it was written on." The reference was to the injunction granted in the Crawford county common pleas court. He further quoted the picket as saying "the matter would be settled by force."

Tells of Stoning

Ruth told the committee that on the night of Sept. 26 he saw men he didn't know standing across the street throwing stones at the plant. This was the night most of the windows in the plant were broken.

Richard Lyons of Iberia, company employe, related incidents regarding his seizure by three men on Oct. 26, the day 375 employes were held prisoner in the plant.

Brief testimony by Carl J. Gugler, Galion attorney, and Sheriff Tom England of Morrow county ended the morning session.

Although Congressman Frederick C. Smith of Marion sat with the committee yesterday, he was not present this morning. Hearings were to be resumed at 1:15 this afternoon.

Hoffman Warns Duck

At one point in the session yesterday afternoon, Hoffman warned Duck and Walter Murphy, another UAW international representative, to stop "interrupting" and "interfering with the witnesses."

Referring to Duck and Murphy, Hoffman asserted:

"You are not going to run this committee," and he called upon a policeman in the hearing room to call Sheriff Ralph Schreck to "maintain order."

Duck, McBerty, Robert H. Jamieson, Cleveland attorney for the company, and others testified that the company and union were closer to an agreement but still deadlocked on the main issue of representation.

McBerty and Jamieson said the company was willing to settle the question of representation by submitting the issue to a secret ballot election, to be conducted by the state.

Duck declared the union would not agree to any election and that it was insisting that the question be settled by a cross check of the 320 membership pledge cards, a majority of Galion plant's 470 production and maintenance employes, against the company's pay roll list.

After Representative Walter E. Brehm (R.) of Logan county, a member of the committee, pointed out that the dispute could be easily settled by an election, Duck replied that the company refused the union's request for a consent election Aug. 19, a day before the strike was begun, and that now the union was insisting on the cross check of pledge cards.

He said he felt that the pledge cards, purporting to represent a majority of the workers in the unit, entitled the union to a signed contract from the company and the right to represent the workers for a year.

A comment from Brehm that perhaps the union's hostility to a secret ballot election was due to fear that the workers who signed the pledges had signed under duress and would change their mind in a "free democratic election" brought a rejoinder from Duck.

The union leader said the UAW did not want "anyone who doesn't want to be a member" and that it was ready to have the committee or some neutral committee contact each one of the pledgees and ask them if they signed under duress. He said the union would agree to subtract those who made the claim and "see if we still have a majority."

Duck Issues Statement

During the hearing Duck issued a statement to reporters. His offer to include the statement, in which he asserted he regarded "this hearing as nothing more than a third-degree inquisition," was rejected by Hoffman.

"At the outset of this meeting it was stated by the committee that an article in the Detroit Free Press on Oct. 3 had accused this committee of being unfair to all concerned in an investigation it conducted in Michigan," Duck said.

"Thus far we have seen nothing from this committee but the aforementioned inquisition and an attempt to kibitz, that is, to play the hands of both parties in the dispute but to play them in a manner that would serve the company's ends.

"I believe that this entire committee is a waste of taxpayers' money and should be dissolved immediately. This hearing is prolonging the present strike."

Under questioning by Brehm and Representative Frederick C. Smith of Marion, who was invited to sit on the committee in an ex-officio capacity because the Galion plant is in his congressional district, Duck testified that the decision to strike was approved by a 213-to-7 vote at a meeting Aug. 20.

After accusing the committee for the third time of giving him and the union "a third-degree inquisition," Duck was warned by Hoffman to "refrain from insulting members of the committee" and to remain in order "or we'll adjourn this hearing to Washington, where we can get order."

"I don't care if you do adjourn to Washington," Duck replied.

Testimony was given by McBerty and Jamieson that the Cleveland regional office of the National Labor Relations Board had informed the company on Oct. 24 that the board was not handling the union's case on the representation question because the union had failed to file the required non-Communist affidavits of its officers and required financial statements as required by the Taft-Hartley law.

Duck said the filing of the required affidavits was optional on the part of the union, that the question of filing them would probably be an issue at the UAW's national convention next month.

Col. Graham Testifies

Lt. Col. Richard V. Graham, representative of the Ohio National Guard, told of his activities in connection with the strike the night of Oct. 22. It was through his efforts that a truce was called, allowing 375 workers to leave the plant. He said his position in Galion was that of an observer for the governor. He was one of the principal witnesses at sessions last night.

Lloyd Bender, vice president in charge of production, told of incidents in the strike, both at Galion and at Mt. Gilead.

Police Chief James L. Walker was called to testify, and read from his police records some of the trouble since the strike was called. He said that he was assured by Edward J. Duck, international representative of the UAW-CIO that there would be no violence, and in turn Walker told there would be no trouble as long as there was no violence.

He suggested that most of the information on the strike incidents could be learned from Patrolmen Norwood Smith, Morris Bowers and Crawford County Sheriff Ralph Schreck. He said when things were getting "hot and heavy" that Mayor Amann placed law enforcement in the hands of Sheriff Schreck. Walker said he felt the sheriff could handle the situation, and that he, Walker, ordered his patrolmen to bring in anyone who was seen throwing any missile. Two men were brought in by Captain Charles Lauer, he said, on the night of Oct. 22, for throwing stones. He said these men were released later. At the conclusion of his testimony, he said he believed that if the plant opens that there is now adequate police protection, and that there is harmony between the chiefs and the sheriff.

Sheriff on Stand

Sheriff Schreck told the committee he could have handled the situation on Oct. 22 if he would have had the 22 uniformed men on duty at 4:30 p. m. He said they were available at 6:30 p. m., but by that time, the crowd outside the plant was too large to control. He said the longer the employes were imprisoned, the larger the crowd became outside the plant.

Hoffman queried: "Did you think about taking out ring leaders of the union in order to break up things?" To this Schreck replied that "I know now, that could have been done." Schreck further said that he thought the "riot act" would take care of it, as he now knew. Schreck also told of Mayor Amann's call to the governor for help, and of the arrival of Col. Graham on the scene on Oct. 22.

Endeavoring to clear up the matter of the release of the two union sympathizers who were arrested on that same evening for throwing stones, Rep. Hoffman was told by Schreck that the release of the men came after an agreement had been reached that the plant would be opened and the imprisoned workers released.

Edward J. Duck at this time said they understood that at 1 a. m., Oct. 23, he thought it was Walter Murphy, a union leader at the scene, who talked with Mayor Amann about the release of the two men, and this was made on the agreement that the company would meet with union representatives Monday of this week for a discussion of the long and bitter dispute. Duck said that when the agreement was made, he, Duck, would talk to the group of "sympathizers" and ask them to disband so the workers could be released.

Robert Jamison, company lawyer of Cleveland, said he knew nothing about the arrangement to release the two union men from the city jail until afterward.

"She will be so happy," Olga said "She has feared so long that Georges would never return But this hole-in-the-wall marriage, Madge! I do not think I can bear it!"

"Wait till you hear my father's plans," I told her. "It will not hurt Olina to keep this news from from her a little longer, and I do want you to hear about the marriage as my father visualizes it. The ceremony will be a secret, for Georges presence in this country must not be known. But it will be no hole-in-the-wall wedding."

"I—I do not understand," Olga faltered.

"I will do my best to make it clear to you," I told her, and then went swiftly over my father's proposition: that Philip through his publicity department should give out the news that the Richard Grahams were entertaining the Philip Veritzens at a house party at their Sag Harbor farmhouse.

"My journey down tomorrow night will be a secret one," I said "and as I told you I will leave Georges there in the care of Mr K.' Katie and Jim, who will keep inviolate the secret of his presence there.

"My return a few hours later, will also be secret," I went on, "but we will have full publicity when we journey down for the house party. It will be perfectly natural for us to have flowers. My father will send down an armored car from the city filled with them if necessary. And you, Olga, and I, with the help of Katie and Mrs. Ticer, can manage the decorations and the wedding supper. The minister will be sworn to secrecy, my father's influence can keep the license a secret. Dr. Ta[illegible] will give the tests so that no possible hint of their plans can leak out. And they will have a pretty home wedding, with their loved ones present."

"It sounds marvelous," Olina's mother said. "But where will they spend the honeymoon?"

"Father has offered them his suite at the farmhouse," I told her. "It is isolated as you know and they can have not only privacy, but virtual hotel service."

"How kind you all are!" Olga exclaimed. "But, what about Mary and Noel? You have not mentioned them as being of the party."

Something in her voice made me sure that she would not be displeased by what I had to tell her.

"I do not think that Mary and Noel will be of the party. I will tell them about it, of course, and invite them. But I think it would be very unwise, in Mary's present state of health, for her to take on any excitement like that. Besides, she is absorbed in the study of her lines."

"Which are much more important than any wedding," Philip Veritzen said speaking for the first time. "But what about you, Madge? This does not seem like a set-up for a playwright with a play to be finished in six weeks."

I wanted to tell him that [illegible] probably the play would not be finished on schedule, but I decided not to add that complication to my problem at this juncture. Instead, I quoted my father.

"My father says," I told him "that I can have all the time I want for writing. But I do not think he took this wedding into account."

"Do not give the wedding another thought, my dear Madge," Olga said. "If you will lend me your house, you, Katie, and your Mrs. Ticer, I will engineer my daughter's wedding."

"Of course, you darling!" I told her. "And now I have told you everything. Where do you wish me to see Olina? It should be some place where no one else is near."

Obituary

★Mrs. Bertha Pearl Hemphill Truitt, daughter of the late James H. and Mary F. Hemphill, was born May 1, 1872, near Rushsylvania, Logan county, Ohio, and passed away Oct. 25, 1947, at her home in Broadway, at the age of 75 years, 5 months, 25 days.

She was united in marriage to Edward E. Truitt of Broadway on May 5, 1890.

She leaves her husband; one son, Earnest W. Truitt, Detroit, Mich.; one brother, Victor Hemphill of Muskegon, Mich.; five sisters, Mrs. Georgia Burleau, Hessel, Mich., Mrs. Anna Bruce, Williamsburg, Mich., Mrs. Jessie Hartshorn, Marysville, O., Mrs. E. E. Smith and Mrs. Glenn Rae, both of Marion, O., and a number of nieces and nephews and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her departure.

Mrs. Truitt was a good wife, mother and neighbor; always willing to lend a helping hand until sickness came to her, having been sick the last four years.

She lived day by day trusting in her Saviour, and a short time before the end she said, "I'm going home, I'm going home. Away from earth and all its woes. I am going home to heaven. My life on earth is through."

So soon, and mother is gone. Gone beyond the world of tears. But the memory of you will ever linger through the passing years.

The rolling stream of life rolls on, but still the vacant chair recalls the love and the voice and the smile of the one who once sat there. And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep, her memory we shall always keep.

The Family.

BUT FROM IT EMERGES the greatest picture yet given of the most powerful persons [illegible] of the war — a man who believed in fighting and [illegible] Nobody really knew Patton better than himself.

Here are some of his own pithy comments on his trade:

"Do not take counsel of your fears."

"If I had worried about flanks I could never have fought the war."

"One does not plan and then try to make the circumstances fit those plans. One tries to make plans fit the circumstances."

"In spite of my reputation as a head-cutter I really am very long-suffering."

WASHINGTON — NOW it's up to President Truman to decide how much information about the government he wants:

1. To keep secret.

2. To let the American people have.

Before deciding he'd have to consider:

1. The blistering [illegible] the subject has taken so far.

2. Whether he wants to be accused of gagging the American public.

This is the problem and how he got that way.

Because of the world's jittery condition and the possibility of war, this government won't make all its secrets public. For example: Information about the atomic bomb.

James Marlow

But unless checked by public watchfulness, it would be easy for the government to try to hide its mistakes on grounds of safety.

Months ago Mr. Truman decided there should be some standard rules on what kinds of information should be kept secret or confidential.

ANNOUNCING
NEW CREDIT TERMS
AT SCHAFFNER'S

Beginning November 1st
Schedule W expires

This was the government order by which we were required to establish credit terms as dictated by the Federal Government.

In some cases these terms were excessively harsh and kept many of our customers from buying the things they needed at the terms they could afford.

As of November 1st we are lowering these down payments and monthly terms consistent with present conditions. Also customers with balances may add on additional purchases without making the customary war time down payment. Monthly payments will be smaller if desired.

In easing these terms there will be no increase in prices or carrying charges. We want everyone needing dependable home furnishings to be able to buy them on the terms they can afford.

As we have so many times during the past 81 years, we want again to assure you

Circleville To Help Harding Stage Homecoming Tonight

Homecoming festivities will share the spotlight with the football game between Circleville and Harding High school tonight, at the stadium.

After Queen Iris Eckles and her court have been crowned and jeweled the Prexies and the Tigers will shake up the gridiron and they'll both be looking for their sixth win.

Eighteen of Coach Steve Brudzinski's Tigers are lettermen, and 10 of them will probably appear in the starting lineup.

Tiger quarterback, Paul Smallwood, thrice a letterman, will probably lead the Circleville gridders on their attack. His tricky ball handling from the T-formation has been a big factor in Circleville's success this season.

Smith Has Rivals

Two fleet Circleville halfbacks, Bob Ferguson and David Crawford, promise to rival the broken field running of Perxy fullback, Clarence Smith.

The Tigers are a light team,—the heaviest man, right tackle Charles Sabine, weighs but 175 pounds. The line averages 159 pounds a man, while the Prexy forward wall averages 169.

Last Year's Records.

Last year Circleville won five and lost four. They won five straight this year, but have dropped their last two games.

The probable Harding lineup reads: Gene Peadon, left end, Bob Ralston, left tackle, Paul Menzer, left guard, Bob Short, center, Dick Upton, right tackle, Jack Bishop, right end, Dick Leffler, quarterback, Jim Coss, left half, Jim Hill right half, and Clarence Smith, fullback. Coach Pete Howison has not as yet named a starter for right guard to replace injured Dick Corwin.

Game time is 8 p. m. Pre-game show is scheduled to get under way at 7:45.

CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY UPPER SANDUSKY

Rams Whip Shelby, 13-6, To Take N.O. Title.

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Oct. 31—Upper Sandusky's Rams won the Northern Ohio league championship and extended their win streak to eight straight by edging the Shelby Whippets, 13-6, in a Homecoming football game here last night.

About 4,000 fans saw quarterback Johnny Mason take the opening kickoff and race 80 yards for a touchdown. Cope's kick for the extra point was good.

Shelby scored late in the first quarter after halfback Maier recovered a Ram fumble on the Ram 31. The Whippets went to the three in three first downs, and Maier plunged over for the tally. A running play for the conversion was not good.

Johnny Mason took the punt near midfield and galloped to the 14 to set up the final score. Kent skirted left and to the one, and plunged over on the next play. The kick was low.

During halftime ceremonies, Carol Sue Fisher was crowned queen by Supt. Charles E. Davis. Before the game, a new flagpole donated by Elmer Hatzel in memory of his son, S/Sgt. Francis Hatzel, captain of 1939 Ram team, was unveiled.

TWO OHIO WESLEYAN GRIDDERS SUSPENDED

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 31—When Mount Union College's Purple Raiders invade Delaware tomorrow afternoon for Ohio Wesleyan's annual "Dads' Day" game and celebration, two Bishop gridders will be out of uniform because they failed to comply with the team's travel regulations after the DePauw game at Greencastle last Saturday.

They are Frank Jacobs, first-string fullback, and Norve Mathie, reserve halfback.

Coach Glenn Fraser said today that the men have been suspended indefinitely.

Ted Urbanowicz, fullback, and Dick Humphreys, veteran tackle, were injured last week and probably will not see action tomorrow. Tom Lotrecchiano, quarterback, may be moved to full, and Bobby McFarland may start at quarter. Jim Madison, 225-pounder, will take Humphreys' spot.

Fraser has been stressing pass defense drills this week and has been running through some new ground and air plays.

The Bishops have taken four out of five this season, losing only to Baldwin - Wallace, 27-19. They beat Albion, 40-6, Otterbein, 28-20, Case, 7-0, and DePauw, 27-14.

American Loop Greasing Skids Under Baseball Commissioner

By OSCAR FRALEY

United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—The skids are being greased under Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler in Cleveland today.

His current clash, this time with shrewd Leslie O'Connor, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, is apparently a deliberate attempt to shear him of more of his fading power and show him the way out.

Two points are significant. Chandler is tangling with one of the most brilliant minds on the legal side of baseball. The other is that the league owners undoubtedly will side with O'Connor because their league office okayed his actions.

You might say that because of earlier difficulties, the unhappy Kentuckian already had one strike on him. One and two is three—and you don't get any more in baseball.

On the surface it seems to be simply a question of whether the owners will or will not support a $500 fine levied on O'Connor by the commissioner for signing a high school pitcher. It's a technicality in which Chandler claims he altered a rule to include "all" high school players and O'Connor, who wrote the rule while formulating the new major-minor league agreement, asserts certain youngsters are excluded.

It goes much deepr than that.

The sum of $500 is a paltry matter to the White Sox. And certainly if O'Connor insists he is in the right, there's a pretty good chance that he is. The only thing to be gained, therefore, is in putting the heat on the already warm commissioner. At the expense of giving public confidence another shaking it must be quite a prize at stake—and it could be the commissionship.

Be certain that the American league, in backing O'Connor, isn't doing it out of love for the balding little man. The dour O'Connor in his long years as aide to the late Commissioner K. M. Landis, made few fast friends. He was an implacable watchdog—and the power behind the Landis throne.

O'Connor announced emphatically after Landis 'death that he was not a candidate for the commissioner's post. So did Will Harridge, the American league president who okayed the high school signing which prompted this present situation. Then there must be a potent reason why they are fronting for Chandler's firing squad.

This is the first real showdown for the commissioner. Landis always had the power to crack down on things which he considered detrimental to baseball." Chandler has insisted that none of these powers were stripped from him. If they weren't, he should win out in this case.

The odds are that he won't. O'Connor knows the score before he steps up to take his licks.

HE STARTED IT. Apparently unconcerned about the controversy raging between Chicago White Sox General Manager Leslie O'Connor and the Baseball Commissioner's office over his contract, 17-year-old George Zoeterman eats a sandwich and twirls his yo-yo at Chicago's Christian High school.

FORECASTER STICKS WITH WOLVERINES

Sees Another O.S.U. Defeat, Easy Notre Dame Win.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—A football forecaster can make mistakes—just as the football teams of Army and Illinois did last Saturday—and that is why this corner's current picks are offered strictly on a take-or-leave basis.

Last week's effort was correct in 56 instances, wrong in 18 for a season's record of 257 correct, 67 wrong and an average of .793.

This week's program:

Michigan-Illinois: Big Nine scouts say there is a distinct possibility that Illinois may repeat its surprise victory of a year ago but Bob Chappuis, Wolverine passer, should outpitch Perry Moss and that should be the difference. Michigan.

Texas-Southern Methodist: Doak Walker to be the star but Texas to win.

Navy-Notre Dame: This is the final week before the Irish take on Army and the final score will depend entirely upon how much the Notre Damers are thinking of the Cadets. Notre Dame.

California-UCLA: Cal Rossi and others of the UCLA team supposedly are ill of food poisoning. Even if he were in good health the now once-beaten Bears would have the edge. California.

Alabama-Kentucky: The Kentuckians are itching for bowl consideration and what is a better method of getting it than by beating the perennial bowl candidate from Tuscaloosa. Kentucky.

Indiana-Ohio State: The Hoosiers have the Big Nine's best defense and if the Buckeyes couldn't pierce the Pitt line last week how will they handle the Hoosiers? Indiana.

Pennsylvania-Princeton: A year ago Princeton spilled Penn 17 to 14. It would be a greater upset if the Tigers repeated. Penn.

60 AT BOOSTER DINNER

About 60 Harding football fans attended the Booster club dinner meeting at the Y. M. C. A. last night and saw movies of the Harding football games played this season.

25 Irish To Make Journey To Sunbury Game Tonigh

St. Mary Coach Gene Fetter will take 25 Irish with him to S bury tonight for a clash with the Sunbury Tigers.

Two Irish starters, Ed Murphy and Bill Merchant, have b unable to practice with the squad this week because of colds, b Fetter said they would probably start tonight.

The Irish will be shooting for their sixth victory in eight starts.

The Sunbury Tigers will be playing their ninth game. They have won five, tied one, and lost two.

Game time is 8 p. m.

CARDINGTON TAKES FIRST GRID VICTORY

Special to The Star

GTON, Oct 31 — The Pirates won their first game in nine starts by Bellville, 14-6, here last tally was set up by pass from Henry Newcomer that sent Kent Carl to the six inch line Carl Berry plunged over on a quarterback sneak. The same pass combination worked for the extra point.

Bellville took the kickoff, drove to the four, lost the ball on downs, but took a punt-out and drove right back to score, with Jack Fry plunging off tackle for the tally.

At the start of the second half, the Pirates took the kickoff and marched to the Bellville 37 and Wilbur Gregory went the rest of the distance on a reverse Bowman's plunge added the extra point.

The Pirates were without the services of regular right end Maxwell, in the Marion hospital with a shoulder injury, and quarterback Roach, sidelined with a broken jaw.

BUCKS, HOOSIERS PREP FOR SATURDAY'S GAME

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31—Ohio State's Buckeyes and Indiana's Hoosiers ran through short drills in Ohio stadium today preparatory to squaring off tomorrow in a Big Nine conference football game before an expected crowd of 76,000

Coaches Wes Fesler of O.S.U. and Bo McMillin of I.U. each reported that one erstwhile starter might miss most of the game because of injuries.

Fesler said he wasn't counting on halfback Bob Brugge who has been hampered by a pulled thigh muscle all season and McMillin "moaned" about a hand injury tackle Wilfred Rawl received in practice this week.

Navy To Attempt Upset Of Notre Dame Saturday

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31—Navy's badly-battered footballers will fire their biggest guns tomorrow at the nation's biggest target, top-ranked Notre Dame, but practically no one believes the much-mauled Middies will be able to shoot any holes in the invincible Irish.

However, attracted by the glamor of the match and the ever-present chance that there's an upset in the making, a crowd of about 85,000 will hand over the edges of Cleveland's municipal lakefront stadium as the two out-of-state clubs battle Game time is 2 p. m.

Two Traffic Accidents Reported by Patrol

Grover Keil, 20, of near Mt Gilead, while driving east on Marion street in Mt. Gilead yesterday noon, ran into a parked car damaging both vehicles, the state highway patrol reported The parked car was owned by Harry Nelson of Mt Gilead.

Ten miles north of Mt. Gilead on route 30-S, cars driven by James Ruhl, 36, of Cardington, and Mrs Jane Morris, 36 of Shelby, collided at 4 20 p m yesterday Ruhl was arrested by the state patrol on a charge of unsafe operation of a motor vehicle and was fined $10 and costs by Mayor R. G Booher of Mt Gilead Both cars were damaged.

Legion Fosters Varied Program To Promote Child Welfare

To acquaint Marion residents generally and former service men especially with the welfare activities of the American Legion, officers of Bird-McGinnis Post No 162 have pointed to the varied activities of the Legion in this field

Their action comes at a time when Bird-McGinnis post is in the midst of a campaign for membership The drive, which will close Armistice day Nov 11, is under the direction of Newton Cunningham, first vice president in charge of membership.

Included in the program is the annual Boys State held each year at Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware, an Americanism essay contest, and the American Legion Junior Baseball teams Bird-McGinnis sponsors two boys each year to Boys State

Started 12 Years Ago

Founded 12 years ago, the purpose of Boys State is to provide intensive study and practical experience in the organization and operation of the American form of government The aim is to produce the highest quality of citizens instead of the largest quantity

Eight hundred boys are chosen from all over the state. They are chosen on a basis of high scholastic standards merits of leadership, sportsmanship, and physical fitness The youths from Marion are chosen on a recommendation from their school principal and all expenses are paid by the post for attendance at the 10-day school

Acting as a sort of miniature government, the boys elect city and state officers in regular political campaigns. They are governed completely by their state

Mr. Cunningham pointed out the boys learn rapidly in 10 days at Boys State about the operation of state and local governments

The school is one of the many things the American Legion is attempting to promote in the way of child welfare

Dun and Bradstreet See Healthy Business

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31—No depression is in sight for the country and virtually all indications point to a continued "healthy" outlook for business, Roy A Foulke, vice president of Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., reports

He told the Cleveland Association of Credit Men last night that the only unfavorable spot on the economic picture was the tendency of "a small but increasing number of business concerns to speculate in inventories"

Concerns with heavy inventories will run into "trouble waters" as fluctuations occur in prices of items or lines. Foulke said has become standard equipment on the two models of tandem rollers and is believed to be the only such case used in the road machinery industry, according to Mr. Acker. The welded case is smaller, lighter and stronger, and production casts are lower, he said.

WELDING

Mr. Gifford and Mr. Thompson designed the welded case when the company began redesigning the two models of tandem rollers.

When Mr. Ruth and Mr. Acker became interested in entering one of the Huber welding methods in the contest, the four agreeds to use the case as their entry and to share equally in any recognition they might win.

Mr. Ruth prepared the costs and methods section of the contest entry and Mr. Acker wrote the accompanying narrative and submitted the entry. The entry was submitted last May, its receipt was acknowledged by the foundation and the contestants had almost forgotten the contest when word came of the award, Mr. Acker said.

Columbus Man Wins

The foundation announced that the second grand prize of $10,700 was won by Kiser E. Dumbauld of Columbus, design engineer of bridges with the Ohio department of highways. He was one of six men in the Columbus area who were judged winners in the program. The Dumbauld paper outlined the redesign of a riveted plate girder bridge over the Maumee river, a riveted girder bridge over the Scioto river, and a girder bridge over the Tuscarawas river.

The first grand award of $13,200 was shared by three employes of Koppers Company, Baltimore, Md. They are Douglas W. Ha ton, Clarence E. Mast and P. Hackethal. The third g award of $8,200 went to C Storatz of Wauwatosa, Wis.

35—PUBLIC SALES

Public Notice

We take great pleasure in saying WE THANK YOU, to all who attended our public sale held eight miles north of Newark Saturday, Oct. 11. It was certainly like a homecoming to see so many fine people get [illegible] together. A fine lunch was served by the Ladies Aid and band music furnished by the auctioneers with their public address sound system. We were certainly pleased and are glad to recommend our auctioneers for their splendid work in advertising and selling our sale. They worked hard and fast from the beginning to the end and the fact that we received $260 for one pair nine year old horses proves to us that Wilson & Williams really know how to sell livestock.
Thanks, and best wishes to all
Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Moran

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN

Chairman Thomas is surprised at the refusal of witnesses to answer questions. He had the impression that Hollywood produced only "yes" men.

* * *

But if many more writers are cited for contempt future pictures will bear credits like "Screen play by 18,602-Atlanta."

* * *

Many Communists now are protesting their good works . . . In the manner of Satan, who claimed he never let a poor sinner freeze.

* * *

But these are days of stirring promise and deed. "President Truman can be reelected," said Bob Hannegan as he stepped out and left J. Howard McGrath to do the job.

I hear the Republican national committee sent McGrath a wreath with a ribbon reading: "Congratulations . . . Best wishes . . . And good luck in 1932."

The elephant never forgets . . . Nor on the other hand does he remember anything worthwhile.

C. and O. Sets Record For Loading Coal Cars

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31 — The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company coal loadings of 5,773 cars on Oct. 28 surpassed all existing daily records for the railway, President Robert J. Bowman announced yesterday.

The previous daily coal loading peak for the C. and O. was 5,745 cars, recorded just five months earlier, on May 28. The railway's present weekly record is 31,958 cars, established in the week ended January 11, 1947.

The C. and O., one of the nation's largest originators of bituminous coal, has been able to increase loadings by maintaining adequate empty car supplies and by schedules which rapidly return empty cars to the coal fields, Mr. Bowman said.
